A cast of twinkle-toed dance students are perfecting their pirouettes and getting into character ready to present an adaptation of The Sleeping Beauty this weekend.

The Rosemary Lane School of Ballet & Theatre Dance will stage the iconic fairytale ballet at Stantonbury Theatre tomorrow (Friday) evening, with a further performance on Saturday and a Sunday matinee.

Evil fairy Carabosse is furious when her daughter, Carabelle, is the only fairy in the kingdom not to receive an invitation to the christening of the newest member of the Royal family, Baby Aurora.

When the big day arrives, Carabosse interrupts the graceful dancing of the Good Fairies to cast a wicked spell.
